The Man of Service

A Tardy Recognition Is Now Given the Great and Illustrious Lincoln.—Celebration of His Centenary.

One hundred years ago tomorrow a great man was born. There is no need to trace his history. You know it. Every child in the public schools has the wonderful story by heart, the story of a man whom circumstances could not bind, whom obstacles could not discourage, whom ridicule could not deter, whose height and breadth and depth of vision so far exceeded those about him that, impervious to all without, guided only by that within, he followed the way we know not of.

It is a question whether we of lesser vision see clearly even now, fifty years after his death, what his life has meant to the nation. We have seen enough to raise him above criticism, above censure, to place him among heroes to which mankind is pleased to a tardy honor. And we have, perhaps, come to realize something of the bigness of mind and heart that makes him our greatest American. The lengthening perspective gained by the passage of each year has but added to his prestige, and none can foresee his final rank.

But, in the last analysis, there is but one true measure of greatness. It is the measure Christ gave us two thousand years ago—and which we in our vanity oft forget. That measure is service.

Tested by this standard the life of Abraham Lincoln stands out supreme above that of his fellows. Utterly unforgetful of self, even to the disregard of his personal appearance, his mind, his heart, and his very existence were given freely without reserve to a nation which sorely needed him.

CARRIED AGED MAN OVER THEIR HEADS TO SHAKE ABE'S HAND.

An Old Methodist Circuit Rider Thanked God Aloud and Pronounced a Solemn Benediction.

By JOHN M. STEVENS.

You ask in recent article, relating to the one hundredth anniversary of Abraham Lincoln, how many Rush county people, living at this time saw the great President and invite all such to communicate the fact to you, giving circumstances and occasion. I saw Lincoln three times, twice in life and after death. I heard him speak twice, the last time while on his journey to Washington to be inaugurated as President. An immense crowd assembled at the railroad station at Greensburg to greet him and he spoke several minutes. A quartette of male singers sang the "Song of Bunker Hill." Lincoln facing the singers and seemingly enjoyed the song, at the conclusion of which, he commenced to speak and our people were entranced. The crowd was so apparently in sympathy with him that he seemed inspired and spoke longer than the allotted time. At the conclusion of his remarks a remarkable demonstration of enthusiasm was manifested by the crowd which cheered him again and again, pressing forward to shake his hand. Lincoln was visibly affected, his eyes were moist and his voice trembled, as he replied to words addressed to him by individuals in the crowd. Back in the audience stood James Blair, eighty-five years of age, an old Circuit rider of the Methodist persuasion, who made feeble efforts to force his way to Lincoln but without avail. Lincoln saw him and standing erect said "my friends please make way for my aged friend that I may shake his hand." The crowd was too dense for this but the aged sire was lifted up and passed over the heads of the crowd to the car and Lincoln stooping grasped his hand. The aged man with the tears running down his cheeks said "Abraham Lincoln thank God that I have lived to see this day," then raising his hands pronounced a prayer and blessing upon Lincoln and bade him God speed. Lincoln's eyes were filled with tears and great stalwart men were deeply affected. Years afterwards I saw him in death as he lay in state, a martyr to his country, in the rotunda of the State house at Indianapolis. With thousands of Indians I looked upon that great form and dropped tears upon the bier. A Nation mourned.

"Abe" Didn't Like Work.

Lincoln admitted that he was not particularly energetic when it came to real hard work.

"My father," said he one day, taught me how to work, but not to love it. I never did like to work, and I don't deny it. I'd rather read, tell stories, crack jokes, talk, laugh—anything but work."

KINFOLKS DID NOT LIKE ABE LINCOLN, THEY CLAIM HE WAS A HOMELY CUSS.

A cousin of Lincoln!

Such is the claim of Pearle Napier, superintendent of the Wayne county poor farm, just west of Centerville, says the Richmond Palladium.

Mr. Napier is a tall, well built man, of slightly more than middle age. He is gaunt and thin with some of the characteristics of the idea called up when one mentions the "Rail Splitter." In short he is a typical backwoodsman of the Kentucky hills, with many of the quaint phrases and endearing qualities which are typical of that life.

Mr. Napier, when asked of his relationship, drawled out in true Kentucky fashion:

"Well, I reckon I am, my folks came from Hardin county in Kentucky. My father's mother was the sister of Abe's mammy."

Don't Aim Too High

"Billy, don't shoot too high—aim lower, and the common people will understand you," Lincoln once said to a bothered lawyer.

"They are the ones you want to reach—at least, they are the ones you ought to reach."

"The educated and refined people will understand you, anyway. If you aim too high, your idea will go over the heads of the masses, and only hit those that need no hitting."

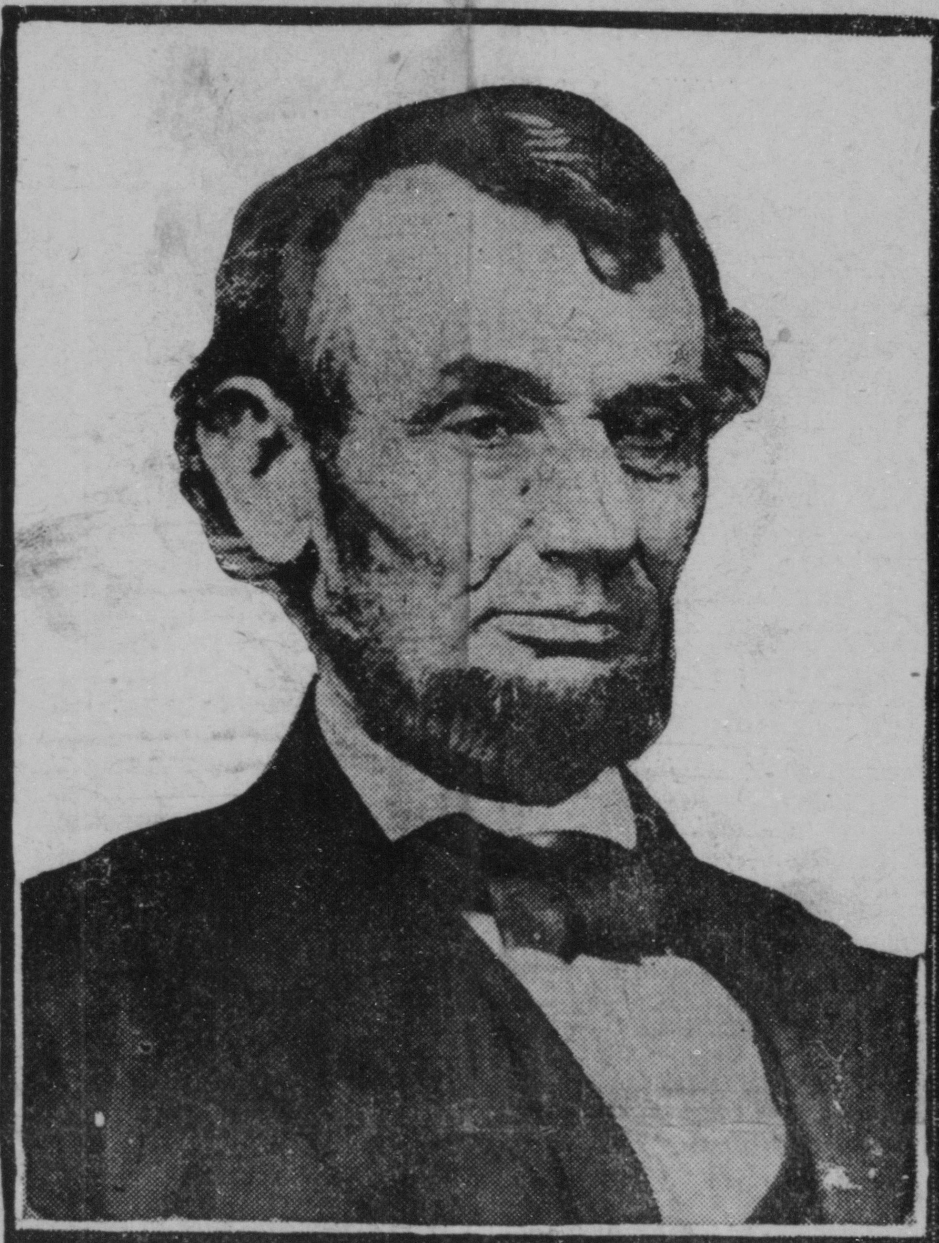

He's Just Beautiful

Lincoln's great love for children easily won their confidence.

A little girl, who had been told that the President was very homely, was taken by her father to see the President of the White House.

Lincoln took her upon his knee and chatted with her for a moment in his merry way, when she turned to the father and exclaimed:

"Oh, Pa! he isn't ugly at all; he's just beautiful!"

BOUGHT WEDDING OUTFIT AFTER HE SHOOK HANDS WITH LINCOLN

Rushville Man Graphically Describes Lincoln's Big Reception In Cincinnati. A Wild Scene.

By WILLIAM A. ALEXANDER, Sr.

Since you have called for reminiscences relative to the approaching centennial birthday of our Immortal Lincoln, I submit the following as my contribution to that end:

Although the events are forty-eight years in the past, yet some of the scenes that transpired on that occasion are indelibly impressed on my memory.

On February 12th, 1861, I and a friend of mine (Harvey Caldwell, Sr.) made a trip to Cincinnati, partly to purchase a part of my wedding outfit, of Louis Frohman, a one-time clothing merchant of Rushville, but then a wholesale clothier of Cincinnati. Arriving in the city we found the citizens busily arranging for the reception of President Lincoln and escort, enroute to Washington. City to be inaugurated president—president not of the United States—for several States had already seceded—but to assume the reins of government of those that yet remained loyal. Learning that the presidential party was to stop at the Burnett House, then considered the best hotel in the city, we went there early to get a favorable position on a large balcony overlooking the street.

After about two hours' waiting, the president arrived in a closed cab. By this time the street was so full of people it was with great difficulty the police could open a way for the cab. But they finally succeeded and the cab door opened and the president alighted and on the arm of one of the reception committee ran up the stone steps and disappeared in the hotel, amid deafening calls for a speech. In a few minutes, in answer to the unceasing call, Mr. Lincoln appeared on the balcony, near where I stood, and made a short speech to the sea of upturned faces in the street, that reached for blocks away.

I cannot recall the speech, only I know it was conciliatory and hopeful. Yet his countenance betokened forebodings within. At the conclusion of his speech the police opened a way for his return to the lobby and as he passed he shook the hands right and left of those in reach, and I happened to be one of the fortunate ones.

It was announced that at 8 o'clock that night a public reception would be given in the large dining room of the hotel. As the time drew near a vast crowd thronged the hotel halls and lobbies. The hall leading to the dining room doors at which a stairway led up to rooms above and down which the president was to come to enter the dining room and take his place on a low platform, near the middle of the room. But the crowd was so wedged in at the foot of the stairs that there was not room for the president to pass, and considerable delay was had in trying to persuade the crowd to fall back. Finally Elmer Ellsworth, captain of a company of zouaves, who were acting as escort to Mr. Lincoln, from Springfield, Ill., to Washington City, came down the stairs about half way, and in a stentorian voice announced "Mr. Lincoln will not appear tonight if the people do not fall back and give him room." It was uttered in such a commanding tone that it sent a thrill through the long hall and the crowd did surge back a few feet, but just as the president came down the stairs, escorted by policemen, and as

Carthage Man Was In the Ford Theater at Washington the Night Booth Assassinated the President.

Special meetings will be in progress at the M. E. church for the Lincoln centenary and the Friends Missionary Society recently announced a social for Feb. 12th says the Carthage Citizen, speaking of men who saw Lincoln and live there.

D. C. Catt was in Ford's theater the night Lincoln was assassinated by J. Wilkes Booth. Catt was about fifteen feet from Lincoln's box and heard the pistol shot and saw Booth jump from the box. Mr. Catt shook hands with Lincoln several times.

Rev. Jared P. Binford distinctly recalls seeing and hearing Mr. Lincoln when the latter stopped in Indianapolis on his way to Washington to be inaugurated President of the United States. He made a speech from the balcony of the old Bates House which stood on the site now occupied by the Claypool Hotel. Lincoln was carried on the shoulders of admirers from the carriage to hotel. Drury Holt saw Lincoln in Indianapolis when he spoke there.

W. S. Johnson and others from here viewed the body as it lay in state in the Capitol at Indianapolis. Thomas P. Weaver heard Lincoln speak from the rear end of a train at Knightstown. Mrs. D. C. Benjamin remembers passing the casket as the body lay in state and how it impressed her as being so long, but does not remember seeing the features of the martyred president. Henry Phelps and T. J. Addison who served with the 19th Ind., in the Army of the Potomac, frequently saw Lincoln, and say he was an awkward figure on horseback. Capt. D. C. Benjamin received his commission as Capt. from Lincoln.

HE GAVE LINCOLN A RED APPLE AND HEARD A JOKE IN RETURN.

Milroy Man Tells How Happy He Was to Return Home to Vote for the "Rail Splitter."

By SAM B. LAUGHLIN.

Our Lincoln, who was idealized by every Union soldier and true patriot of America, I first had the pleasure of seeing, and shaking hands with him and listening to him make one of his best speeches I ever listened to, on what was then called Fifth Street Market Space, but now known as Fountain Square, which is located on Fifth street, between Vine and Walnut streets in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1859 (Saturday, Sept. 17th). A short time before he ran for president the first time.

I again saw him in Washington, D. C., in 1865. A short time before he was killed by the assassin J. Wilkes Booth at Ford's theatre. My cousin, Robert Bowles, went to Greensburg to see Lincoln when he was on his way to Washington, D. C., to take oath of office as President of the United States for the first term. Robert told his patriotic wife that he shook hands with him and gave him a large red apple, making a remark at the time which provoked a smile.

Cousin Ann M. Bowles survives her husband. She will be 88 years of age on February 11th. She too was a great admirer of the noble Lincoln. Who could help but love him?

I came home from the army in 1864 to vote for Lincoln and our beloved patriot and governor, Oliver P.

Morton. Indiana soldiers were denied the privilege of voting in the field. It was a great day to me. My dear old comrad and life-long friend, J. M. Carr, was very sorry that he did not avail himself of the privilege. Johnny and I volunteered in the 19th Indiana Battery of Light Artillery at Cambridge City, Indiana, on August 3d, 1862, and were mustered in at the old fair grounds in Indianapolis, June 10th, 1862. Served until the close of the Civil War. Our first engagement was Perryville, Ky., Aug. 8th, 1862; Tullahoma, Tenn.; Chickamauga, Tenn.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Missionary Ridge, Tenn.; Rocky Face Ridge, Ga.; Tunnel Hill, Ga.; Resaca, Ga.; Big Shanty, Ga.; Kennesaw Mountain, Ga.; Marietta, Ga.; Chattahoochee River, Ga.; Reach Tree Creek, Ga.; Atlanta, Ga.; Jonesboro, Ga.; Elizabeth Church, Ga.; Savannah, Ga.; Columbus, S. C.; Fayetteville, N. C.; Averysboro, N. C.; Bentonville, N. C.; Johnson's surrender at Holly Springs, N. C., about thirty miles from Rolla, N. C. This was known as Sherman's March to the Sea, with our fearless commander, Wm. T. Sherman.

I was born in dear old Rushville, November 5th, 1840. Our family needs no introduction to any of the old pioneers of Rush county. I am now living in Milroy.

WHY HE WAS CALLED "HONEST ABE." "WHOLE CHEESE" IN OLD TIME STORE.

During the time Lincoln was in Denton Offutt's store at New Salem, that gentleman, whose business was somewhat widely and unwisely spread about the country, ceased to prosper in his finances and finally failed. The store was shut up, the mill was closed, and Abraham Lincoln was out of business.

The year had been one of great advance, in many respects. He had made new and valuable acquaintances, read many books, mastered the grammar of his own tongue, won multitudes of friends, and became ready for a step still further in advance.

Those who could appreciate brains respected him, and those whose ideas of a man related to his muscles were devoted to him. It was while he was performing the work of the store that he acquired the sobriquet of "Honest Abe"—a characterization he never dishonored, and an abbreviation that he never outgrew.

He was judge, arbitrator, referee, umpire, authority, in all disputes, games and matches of man-flesh, horse-flesh, a pacificator in all quarrels; everybody's friend; the best natured, the most sensible, the best-informed, the most modest and unassuming, the kindest, roughest, strongest, best fellows in all New Salem and the region round about.

Remember Postmaster Frazee is selling steel engravings of Abraham Lincoln, designed by one of the best artists in the country, for two cents each. That is to say, Lincoln's picture appears on the special "Lincoln Day" stamps that will be sold Friday.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at this will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. He it was who had suggested to her that she might make money easily by cultivating the acquaintance of the new members of both houses and their families, exerting her influence in various "perfectly legitimate ways," he argued, for or against matters pending in legislation. The Standard Steel corporation kept Mrs. Spangler well supplied with funds deposited monthly to her account in a Philadelphia trust company.

She avoided suspicion by reason of her sex and her many acquaintances of undisputed rank. Senator Peabody was never invited to her home, had never attended a single dinner, reception or musicale she had given, all of which was a part of the policy they had mutually agreed on to deaden any suspicion that might some time arise as to her relation to the Standard Steel company. It was well known that Peabody had been put into the senate by Standard Steel to look after its interests.

He had found Mrs. Spangler chiefly valuable thus far as a source of information regarding the members of congress, which she obtained largely from their families. He was thus able to gain an idea of their associations, their particular interests and their aspirations in coming to congress, which proved of much use to him in forming and promoting acquaintances, all for the glory of Standard Steel.

Senator Holcomb of Missouri told Mrs. Spangler at an afternoon tea confidentially that he was going to vote against the ship subsidy bill. Senator Peabody was informed of this two hours later by a note written in cipher. When the vote was called two days later Senator Holcomb voted for the bill. Standard Steel supplies steel for ocean liners, and their building must be encouraged.

Mrs. Windsor, wife of Congressman Windsor of Indiana, remarked to Mrs. Spangler at a reception that she was "so glad Jimmie is going to do something for us women at last. He says we ought to get silk gowns ever so much cheaper next year." Jimmie Windsor was a member of the house committee on ways and means and was busily engaged in the matter of tariff revision. When President Anders of the Federal Silk company heard from Senator Peabody that Windsor favored lowering the tariff on silk a way was found to convince the congressman that the American silk industry was a weakening and many investors would suffer if the foreign goods should be admitted any cheaper than at present.

President Anders would be willing to do Senator Peabody a favor some day.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. These sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer with out help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

TRY THE MONEY-BACK CURE FOR INDIGESTION.

Nine times in ten stomach derangements are responsible for sallow complexion, dull eyes and thin body.

It is the stomach that supplies nourishing blood to the muscles, the nerves and skin. If the stomach is healthy, plenty of nutritious matter will be absorbed by the blood. If it is not healthy, the food will ferment, and undigested, will pass along through the bowels, furnishing so little nutritious matter that the blood becomes impoverished, and the glow of health vanishes.

If you suffer from nervousness, sick headache, belching of gas, sour taste in the mouth, heaviness after eating, or any other miserable stomach disturbance, you need Mi-o-na, and the sooner you get it the quicker you will be healthier and happier.

It will relieve any distressed stomach condition almost immediately. It will cure if used according to directions. F. B. Johnson & Co. sell it for 50 cents a large box, and they think enough of it to guarantee it to cure indigestion.

at the thought of what would become of her if she should make some slip, some fatal error, and be discovered to her friends as a betrayer of confidences for money. A secret agent of Standard Steel! What a newspaper story she would make—"Society Favorite a Paid Spy." "Woman Lobbyist Flees Capital." The sensational headlines flitted through her mind. Then she would grit her teeth and dig her finger nails into her palms. She had to have money to carry on the life she loved so well. She must continue as she had begun. After all, she reasoned, nothing definite could ever be proved regarding the past. Let the future care for itself. She might marry again and free herself from this mode of life, who knows?

So reasoned Cora Spangler for the hundredth time during the last two years as she sat in her boudoir at her home. She had spent part of the day with Carolina and Hope Langdon and in the evening had attended the musicale at their house. But she had been forced to leave early owing to a severe headache. Now, after an hour or two of rest, she felt better and was about to retire. Suddenly the telephone bell rang at a writing table

"Hello! Who is it?" near a window. She had two telephones, one in the lower hall and one in her boudoir—to save walking downstairs unnecessarily, she explained to her woman friends. But the number of this upstairs telephone was not in the public book. It had a private number, known to but two people except herself.

Taking down the receiver, she asked in low voice, "Hello, who is it?"

"Mr. Wall."

It was the name Senator Peabody used in telephone conversation with her.

"Yes, congressman!" she responded. She always said "Yes, congressman," in reply to "Mr. Wall," a prearranged manner of indicating that he was talking to the desired person.

"I will need your services tomorrow," Senator Peabody said, "on a very important matter, I am afraid. Decline any engagements and hold yourself in readiness."

"Yes."

"I may send my friend S. to explain things at 10:30 in the morning. If he does not arrive at that time, telephone me at 10:35 sharp. You know where. Understand? I have put off going to Philadelphia tonight."

"Yes."

"That is all; goodbye." "Something very important," she murmured nervously as she turned from the desk.

"I don't like his tone of voice; sounds strained and worried—something unusual for the cold, flinty gentleman from Pennsylvania. And his 'friend S.' of course, means Stevens! Great heavens, then Stevens must now have knowledge of my—my—business!"

She calmed herself and straightened a dainty, slender finger against her cheek.

"It must be something about that naval base bill, I'm sure. That's been worrying Peabody all session," she mused as she pressed a button to summon her maid.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"THE BOSS OF THE SENATE" GAINS A NEW ALLY.

MRS. SPANGLER would have flattered herself on guessing correctly as to Senator Peabody's uneasiness had she heard and seen all that had taken place in his apartment at the Louis Napoleon hotel, where he had hurriedly taken Senator Stevens on leaving the Langdon house.

Not only would the two senators lose their immense profits on the Altacoola transaction if Langdon persisted in his opposition, but they would lose as well the thousands of dollars spent by their agents in purchasing options on hundreds of acres and, where they could not get options, the land itself. This land would be on their hands, unsalable, if the base went somewhere else. Moreover, they feared that Langdon's revolt would bring unpleasant newspaper publicity to their operations.

"There's only one course to pursue, Stevens," snapped Peabody as they took off their overcoats. "That is to be prepared as best we can for the very worst and meet it in some way yet to be determined. But first we must try to figure out what Langdon is going to do—what it can be that he says he will tell us tomorrow at 12:30 if we appear. He must have something very startling up his sleeve if he makes good his assertions. I can't see how."

"Nor I," frowned Stevens, "and my political eye-sight is far better than that fool Langdon's. Under ordinary circumstances we could let him go ahead with his minority report for Gulf City, but as things stand he'll have every newspaper reporter in Washington buzzing around and asking impertinent questions."

"Yes, and you and I would have to go to Paris to live with our life insurance friends from New York, wouldn't we?" laughed Peabody sarcastically. "I'm going to send for Jake Steinert," he added.

"Steinert?" Stevens ejaculated.

"What?" "Oh, that's all right. Maybe he can suggest something," said Peabody, going to the telephone. "We've too much at stake to make a mistake, and Jake may see a point that we've overlooked. Luckily I saw him downstairs in the grill room as we came through to the elevator."

"Steinert is all right himself," continued Stevens, "but his methods—" "Can't be too particular now about his methods—or ours, Stevens, when a bull like Langdon breaks loose in the political china shop. Fortune and reputation are both fragile."

A ring of a bell announced the arrival of Jake Steinert, whose reputation as a lobbyist of advanced ability had spread wide in the twenty years he had spent in Washington. Of medium height, sallow complexion, dark hair and dark eyes, his broad shoulders filled the doorway as he entered. An ill-kept mustache almost hid a thin-lipped, forceful mouth, almost as forceful as some of the language he used. His eyes darted first to Peabody and then to Stevens, waiting for either of them to open the conversation.

The highest class lobbyists, those who "swing" the "biggest deals," concern themselves only with men who can "handle" or who control lawmakers. They get regular reports and outline the campaign. Like crafty spiders they hide in the center of a great web, a web of bribery, threat, cajolery and intrigue, intent on every victim that is lured into the glistening meshes.

Only the small fry mingle freely with the legislators in the open, in the hotels and cafes and in the capitol corridors.

Jake Steinert did not belong in either of these classes; he ranked somewhere between the biggest and the smallest. He coupled colossal boldness with the most expert knowledge of all the intricate workings of the congressional mechanism. Given money to spend among members to secure the defeat of a bill, he would frequently put most of the money in his own pocket and for a comparatively small sum defeat it by influencing the employees through whose hands it must pass.

"Sit down, Jake. Something to drink?" asked Peabody, reaching for a decanter.

"No," grunted the lobbyist; "don't drink during business hours; only during the day."

"Well, Jake," said the Pennsylvanian, "you probably know something of what's going on in the naval affairs committee."

"You mean the biggest job of the session?"

"Yes."

"Sure thing, senator. It's the work of an artist."

"The boss of the senate" smiled grimly.

"Now, suppose a committeeman named Langdon absolutely refused to be taken care of and insisted on handing in a minority report tomorrow, with a speech that read like the Declaration of Independence?"

Steinert jerked his head forward quickly.

"You mean what would I do if I was—er—if I was running the job?"

"Yes."

Steinert leaned toward Peabody.

"Where do I come in on this?" he asked suspiciously.

"Come, come, man," was the irritable retort. "I never let a few dollars stand between myself and my friends."

"All right, senator."

The lobbyist thrust himself down in his chair, puffed slowly at a cigar and gazed thoughtfully at the ceiling.

"Few years ago," he began after a minute or two, "there was a fellow who was going to squeal about a bond issue. He had his speech all ready to warn the country that he thought a crowd of the pluto-crazy was going to get the bonds to resell to the public at advanced rates. Well, sir, I arranged to have a 'He was at the insane asylum.'" carriage, a closed carriage, call that night to take him to see the president, for he was told the president sent the carriage for him. When he got out he was at the insane asylum, and I can tell you he was bundled into a padded cell in jig time, where he stayed for three days. 'He thinks he's a member of congress,' I told the two huskies that handled him; 'he gave 'em each a twenty case note. The doctor that signed the necessary papers got considerable more.'"

Stevens' gasp of amazement caused the narrator genuine enjoyment.

"I know of a certain senator who was drunk on a laid away in a Turkish bath when the roll was called on a certain bill. He was a friend of Peabody's," laughed the lobbyist to the Mississippi.

"But in his case," said Stevens, "we must be very careful. Possibly some of your methods in handling the men you go after—"

"Say," interposed Steinert, "you know I don't do all pursuing, all the going after, any more than others in my business. Why, senator, some of these congressmen worry the life out of us folks that sprinkle the sugar. They accuse us of not lettin' 'em in on things when they haven't been in some time. They come down the trail like greyhounds' coursing a coyote."

The speaker paused and glanced across at Peabody, who, however, was too busily engaged in writing in a memorandum book to notice him.

"Why, Senator Stevens," went on the lobbyist, "only today a down east

Mind Blank! on Dissappearance

Dayton, O., (Spl.)—Samuel Moon's mind is a blank as far as memory of the events of his trip away from home last week is concerned. He says he does not remember anything that happened after he left his house. He has been suffering from stomach trouble and muscular rheumatism for several years. He has reported for work at the postoffice.—Cincinnati Post, January 29, 1909.

And then on the other hand read this:

The Rheumaline Co., Cincinnati, O. I have had rheumatism for some time. Was in pretty bad shape. Tried Rheumaline and can truthfully say it has helped me wonderfully, both with my rheumatism and my stomach as well.

JOHN MULQUENNY,
1129 South Brown St., Dayton, O.

Rheumaline cures rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, gout, and kidney, liver, bladder, stomach and blood troubles, caused by uric acid, and costs $1.00. Rheumaline Capsules stop pain and cost 50 cents. Rheumaline Tablets relieve constipation and cost 25 cents. Lytle's Drug Store is the sole agent in Rushville, so procure Rheumaline there at once. It removes the cause.

MAN WITH HIS HAIR CUT SHORT

Mr. Yeuell Will Address the Men's Meeting Sunday Afternoon on Unique Subject.

Musical Program Will Consist of Congregational Singing, Solos, Quartette and Orchestra.

At the Men's Meeting at the Christian church Sunday afternoon Herbert Yeuell will speak on "The Man With His Hair Cut Short." It is a strong lecture-sermon and Mr. Yeuell has received the highest compliments from the press everywhere he has delivered this talk. The meeting will begin at 2:30 o'clock with a fine musical program. In addition to several numbers by the orchestra and the congregational singing, Ellsworth Rogers will sing a solo and the quartette composed of B. F. Miller, Jesse Pugh, Mrs. Ida Spurrier-McDaniel and Miss Edith Holden, will sing.

The title of Mr. Yeuell's subject is unique and one will have to guess as to what will be his line of thought on such a theme. It may mean a prisoner with newly clipped hair, a Samson shorn of his locks, a henpecked husband or even a bald headed man; at any rate, it will be good for Mr. Yeuell can always be depended upon to "deliver the goods."

WILL ORGANIZE A PAGE RANK CLASS

Local Ivy Lodge No. 27 are Making Extensive Preparations For Initiation.

TO BE HELD FRIDAY, FEB. 19

The Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias has expressed the desire that each lodge over the State organize a page rank class to be initiated on the evening of Friday, Feb. 19, which day is not only the anniversary of the order, but also of the Grand Lodge of Indiana. The members of the local Ivy Lodge No. 27 are now complying with the request of the Grand Lodge and are making an extensive canvass for new candidates. Circular letters are being sent out to all of the members of the local lodges asking them to pledge all the prospects they can. A good program will be arranged and an enjoyable evening is assured.

Lawyers of Several Counties are Legging For Shake-Up in Circuit Courts.

THE SEPARATE CIRCUIT TALK

Is the First That Barristers of Rush County Have Done for Nothing in a Long Time.

Practically all the members of the Shelby county bar attended the meeting held Monday evening at the Hord & Adams law office to consider the separate circuit proposition for this county says the Shelbyville Liberal. The discussion showed that the attorneys favor the move, and a special committee was appointed to look after the bills now before the Legislative committees touching on the subject, the members of the committee being K. M. Hord, H. S. Downey, R. W. Harrison, Alonzo Blair, Charles Haack and Albert F. Wray. All the other attorneys interested will also endeavor to attend the sessions of the Legislature to urge the passage of the bills creating the separate circuit.

The committee representing Shelby county will meet with similar ones from Rush and Bartholomew counties Wednesday evening and go to Indianapolis to attend a joint meeting of the committee from both houses of the State Assembly on Organization of Courts.

It is said that Decatur county will send no committee as many of her attorneys are objecting to the change which will place Decatur and Rush counties in a circuit leaving Shelby and Bartholomew counties as separate circuits. Rush is now joined with Shelby and Decatur is joined with Bartholomew.

J. B. Crabtree of Hillsboro, Ill., owner of Lady Maud C. and Hedge-wood Boy, who has been here the guest of Dick and William Wilson, expressed himself as being highly pleased with Rushville. Mr. Crabtree may buy a Rush county farm in the near future.

SCHOOL NOTES

Prof. J. H. Scholl.

At the beginning of each term there is an opportunity for pupils to begin school for the first time. Pupils who will be six years old by April 1 will be admitted if they will begin now. After February 22 no new pupils will be admitted for this term.

The new term has begun with excellent interest. Parents are asked to visit at the beginning of the term and get acquainted with the work required for the remainder of the year. About one-half of the whole number of the pupils in the grades have new work for this term.

Lincoln Day will be observed by the schools. The grades will have appropriate songs and recitations and the high school will render an interesting program at 2:30 o'clock, with the G. A. R. as honored visitors. Col. E. H. Wolfe will respond to the program.

The school flags will be displayed tomorrow in honor of Lincoln. As much time has already been lost by enforced vacation, it is considered best to have the schools in session tomorrow.

Thomas E. Green will deliver the third number of the Senior class lecture course, February 25. Dr. Green will sustain the high standard of the first and second numbers.

FISHER INSPECTS LODGE

Rushville Man Tendered a Banquet
by Connersville Knights.

Says the Connersville Courier: "The annual inspection of Carnahan rank, uniformed Knights of Pythias took place Tuesday night. Samuel Fisher, of Rushville, was the inspecting officer. The attendance of knights was gratifying and the result of the inspection, it is understood, was satisfactory. After the work in the lodge room, Mr. Fisher was tendered a little banquet at Chrismer's restaurant. This proved to be an enjoyable affair."

SOUTH TO JOIN WITH THE NORTH

Whole Country Will Honor Lincoln's Memory Tomorrow—Tribute of a Nation.

THE PRESIDENT IN KENTUCKY

Roosevelt Will be Present at Celebration on the Old Lincoln Farm and Birthplace.

[Special to the Daily Republican.]

Washington, Feb. 11—Reports reaching here from all parts of the United States indicate that the observance of Lincoln centennial day will be general throughout the country. All of the northern states will celebrate the day, and many of the southern states will follow the lead of Arkansas, where Governor Donaghey issued a proclamation setting aside February 12 as a semi holiday and calling attention to the greatness of Lincoln as a man. The governor's proclamation declared that Lincoln should be more honored by the south.

The celebration in the national capital will take the form of meetings, at which addresses will be made by men of national and local prominence. President Roosevelt will be at the Lincoln farm in Kentucky, Vice President Fairbanks will be in Harrisburg, Pa., and many of the other leaders of public life here will be at their homes, but a sufficient number will remain in Washington to give the celebration a national character to some extent. The large negro population of the city has made elaborate preparations for honoring the one hundredth birthday of the great liberator. By act of congress tomorrow will be a legal holiday in the District of Columbia and the territories.

A feature of Lincoln day at the capital that will be of national interest will be the issue of the special Lincoln two cent stamp. It will be red and will bear a portrait of Lincoln taken from the statue by St. Gaudens in Chicago

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Dora Betker is much improved today.

Gradually the conviction is being forced upon us that every American over fifty years of age knew Lincoln personally and enjoyed his confidence.

The Sunday school of the First Presbyterian church will hold an exchange in Holden's room, Masonic Temple building, Saturday, February 13.

The statements of the Rushville banks appear in this issue of the Daily Republican. They show the financial condition of this community to be in first class shape.

The United Presbyterian church will have a novel and most entertaining social Monday night in the nature of a Valentine social.

The annual farmers' institute of Walker township, Rush county, will be held at Manilla Tuesday and Wednesday, February 16 and 17.

A Valentines social will be given by the young ladies of the Catholic church tomorrow evening in the old church hall.

A brief service will be conducted over the remains of Mrs. Celia Bowman at her home in Cerro Gordo street tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock by Rev. V. W. Tevis of the St. Paul's M. E. church. The remains will be shipped to Metamora for burial on the 1:50 traction car.

CHILD-MOTHER IS TAKEN AWAY

Scene in Grief-Stricken Home is Beyond Description—Death Relieves Mother.

NO FUEL OR FOOD IS FOUND

When Neighbors Call in After the Angel of Death Departs With a Soul.

The death of a young mother, under most distressing and heart rending circumstances occurred last night, when the angel of dark vestments ushered the soul of Miss Fanny Taylor into eternity. It is difficult to picture the scene about the death bed and correctly chronicle a description of the home of the bereaved family that survive. Eight or nine in number, they are little better off than the one that lies cold in death upon the bier.

The child-mother is but eighteen years of age and three weeks ago gave birth to a child; a child that will never know its mother and because of most unfortunate circumstances will never know its father. With the birth of the child came an illness that soon developed into appendicitis and peritonitis. From the latter cause the girl died.

The family is in sorry straits, penniless and apparently without friends. To add misery to the already dark picture the mother of the girl is in poor health and but five weeks ago gave birth to a child. Six or seven other children, none of them able to understand or know why the world is so cruel, the only thing they fully realize is that they are, for the most part of the time, hungry and cold, stand about and cry. The father, James Taylor, is a cripple and unable to work and depends upon what little succor the township bestows. There is but one bed in the house and this has been turned in turn by the two mothers in their confinement. The children sleep about on pallets and what-not on the floor, snuggling up to each other to keep warm during the night. There is no heating stove in the house and but a frail and skeleton work of an old cook stove where they warm what victuals neighbors bring in. For the two infants there are but three or four little torn and ragged dresses and indeed the little ones seem to suffer from the cold. They all managed to live by some manner or means while they were healthful, but when death entered the home, the scene is one that baffles description. A number of charitable ladies and societies have taken the matter up and will assist the family. They came here two or three years ago from Shelbyville.

The funeral services will occur Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock; burial in East Hill.

In Line Three Hours!

A number of Rushville and Rush county people saw Lincoln after he was dead and lay in state in the rotunda of the State house in Indianapolis, when the remains were being brought back from Washington to Springfield for burial. Alfred Caldwell was among those who went to Indianapolis on that occasion and he says he stood in line over three hours before he got in and got to pass the bier where the martyred President lay.

PERSONAL POINTS

—Conroy Grossman of Shelbyville is here for the funeral of his niece Fanny Taylor.

—H. H. Rigdon, a real estate agent of Greenfield was in this city yesterday afternoon on business.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lon H. Havens were visitors in Indianapolis yesterday.

—Miss Nannie Orear saw the Williams & Walker show in Indianapolis this week.

END OF REVIVAL DRAWING NEAR

Evangelistic Singer Ramsay. Will Soon Leave and the Meetings Will Close.

HAVE ACCOMPLISHED GOOD

Spirit of Prayer and Worship Was Revived in Membership of Church.

The membership of the First Presbyterian church are getting quite enthusiastic and are experiencing a wonderful revival. The expression is heard on ever hand that the Presbyterians are more alive at the present than they have been for many a year. The spirit of song, the spirit of prayer, the spirit of the Divine message are warming up and reviving hearts that had grown cold and seemingly dead to religious influences. Until men, women and children are not willing but anxious to become witnesses for the Master.

In a few more days the revival meetings will close and Mr. Ramsay will take his departure to new fields of labor, but when he leaves he will carry with him, not only the best wishes and kindest regards of the Presbyterian people, but of the people of the entire city. In his quiet, unobtrusive way, this master of song came into our city an entire stranger and after a brief, but pleasant stay, he will leave our city known and loved by all who have met him and heard his charming voice.

Rev. Cowling has been preaching some very strong and practical sermons from night to night and these messages will bear fruit, if not at present, they will in the future.

The Presbyterian people are under great obligations to the members of other churches who have assisted in these services. Especially are they under obligation to Rev. Clark, who has been of great assistance in the meetings.

Along the Potomac!

"I saw Lincoln once," said J. W. Tompkins today. "It was during the war when we boys were down in Maryland, along the Potomac river doing picket duty. He came to sort of review the troops and speak a word or two to the boys. And maybe you think it didn't sound good. Kept our spirits up again for a number of days."

Soldiers Saw Lincoln.

At a recent meeting of the G. A. R. mention was made of the Daily Republican's query as to who had seen Lincoln. Upon inquiry it was found that four of the number present had seen him, the quartette being B. L. McFarlan, George Pearsey, John M. Stevens and John W. Davis. Jabez Smith and John W. Davis voted for Lincoln the first time he ran for President.

GLAD HAND GIVEN TO LOCAL LAWYERS

Judiciary Committee Lend Their Ears and May Later Lend Their Influence.

DISCUSS CHANGE OF CIRCUIT

The glad-hand reception accorded the committees from Rush, Shelby, Bartholomew and Decatur counties by the Judiciary committee of the Indiana Legislature leads them to believe favorable report on the Yalling-Tomlinson bill for separate judicial circuits for Shelby and Bartholomew counties and joint for Rush and Decatur will be made. The House and Senate committees met in joint session Wednesday to consider the bill. Several are attorneys and arguments made by the promoters of the measure were more effective than would otherwise have resulted.

THIRD VICTIM OF HEART DISEASE

In Two Days, is Mrs. J. W. Browning
Who Died at Orange Wednesday Morning.

WAS ILL BUT A FEW MINUTES

Is Survived by a Large Family of Children—Funeral to be Held Tomorrow.

The sudden death of Mrs. Lucy Jane Browning, the wife of J. W. Browning, a poultry dealer of Orange, which took place Wednesday morning at 8:30, was a great shock to the citizens of the little village.

The morning the lady arose and commenced her daily routine of house work as usual, but complained of feeling ill. As the morning wore on she grew worse but it was not believed that her sickness was at all alarming and household remedies were given her. A few minutes before death struck her she sat down on the bed and sank back as if too ill to speak. There was a moment's struggle, a short gasp for breath and her husband saw that she was dead.

Coroner C. M. Spieley, of Connersville, was called and rendered the verdict, death from valvular heart trouble.

Mrs. Lucy Jane Browning was born in Bracken county, Kentucky, in October, 1845. After she grew to young womanhood she was married to J. W. Browning. Besides the husband four children survive, Lucius H. Browning and Mrs. Sarah Adams, both of Orange, and Charles and William Browning of Connersville.

The funeral services will be conducted from the Orange Christian church at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon by Rev. Roscoe Smith, pastor of the Little Flatrock Christian church. The remains will be buried in the cemetery north of Orange.

The deceased is the third victim of heart disease in this county in two days, the first two deaths being in this city.

James Greeley dropped dead at his home in North Sexton street Monday evening. Mrs. Celia Bowman died suddenly at her home in Cerro Gordo street Tuesday evening and Mrs. Browning was afflicted Wednesday morning at her home in Orange.

WILL CELEBRATE THE CENTENARY

Of Abraham Lincoln With Appropriate Exercises in the Graham
High School.

W. R. C. AND G. A. R. TO ATTEND

The members of the high school will celebrate the Lincoln centenary tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Graham school building with appropriate exercises. The program will consist of patriotic songs, the Lincoln Gettysburg speech recited in unison by all of the members of the high school, the celebrated Freeport debate given by two of the high school students, and speeches by several prominent men. The local post of the Grand Army of the Republic and the members of the Women's Relief Corps will attend in a body. Col. E. H. Wolfe will respond with a speech for the old soldiers.

IT'S GOOD TODAY.
* I like to see a man proud of
* the place in which he lives. I * like to see a man who lives in
* it so his place will be proud of * him. Be honest, but hate no
* one; overturn a man's wrong
* doing; but do not overturn him
* unless it must be done in over-
* turning the wrong.—Abraham
* Lincoln.

Why, I Knew Abe!

Oh revered hero, this timely ode
Of you, unforgotten—I faint unload
My meeting with you—Oh war chief great!

Where assembled the now aged who ever relate

Their treasured recollections in a goodly store

With exaggeration yearly, from shore to shore.

Did I see Honest Abe? I should say
I did.

Tried shaking his hand that pinched and hid

My pen fist—while his grave eyes divine

Penetrated the vice of this soul of mine.

Abe pondered o'er my brass band
Union blue,

And observing me jested with a personal view

"My comrade, how could the shrap-nel's blast

Costing not your life such features east."

Nor this humor to his death did I realize

That with me—so homely did he sympathize.

Yet I saw him but once and but once heard him tell

How he joked with old Sherman when he said "war is hell."

But he'd know me and visit me, if he lived today

And would not have died in a death of foul play.

JESSE W. GURE.

CHANCE TO PROVE FAITH

County Option Repeal is Brought Down to the Voters.

Let's see what they do in Marshall county today! It is normally 400 Democratic. In the election today to elect a representative, the Democrat promises to vote to repeal the law: the Republican is running on a platform promising to vote against repeal. Let us see now if the Democrats and Prohis will line up for the man who declares he will not vote for repeal. It is a timely time for a timely test.

LINCOLN NIGHT AT THE CHURCH

Evangelist Yeuell Will Give a Number of Illustrated Views With Stereopticon Machine.

APPROPRIATE MUSIC, TOO

With Patriotic Singing on the Part of the Congregation Will be the Order of Business.

Tonight will be "Lincoln Night" at the big Yeuell revival at the Christian church and in connection with the regular evangelistic service, Evangelist Yeuell will have some beautiful electric pictures thrown on the screen, illustrating Lincoln's life and the congregation will sing some illustrated patriotic songs. A great meeting is promised and interest is intense in the service. Mr. Yeuell will preach as usual and his subject will be "Meeting God."

Last night the big audience was stirred by a sermon of unusual heart power. The evangelist was at his best on the theme, "A Weeping God." He dramatically described Jesus weeping over Jerusalem and her sins. Christ's sympathy was broader than the Jewish church; he loved men and all people responded to his sympathetic heart. The same sympathy is for all humanity today. Mr. Yeuell told the thrilling story of Harry Monroe, one of the worst gamblers and libertines of Chicago, won from a life of deepest wickedness by Christian sympathy and now in charge of the biggest slum mission in America and winning hundreds of lost souls to the higher life. He also told an amusing story of Theodore Roosevelt when a boy, being afraid of any church building when the janitor invited him in saying:

"I know what you've got in there."

"What's that?" said the janitor.

"You've got a big seal in there and he will eat me up."

The pastor had preached the previous Sunday morning from the text, "The zeal of the house hath eaten me up." The Evangelist urged all Christians to have zeal and let it be a consuming one for God.

Much interest is being taken in the great meeting for men Sunday afternoon, when Mr. Yeuell gives his great star course lecture on "The Man With His Hair Cut Short."

At the close last night he paid a tribute to Abraham Lincoln and the old soldiers and announced Lincoln Night for tonight.

MANILLA GAME CANCELLED

Today on Account of Sickness of Two Players.

The basket ball game that was to have been played tomorrow night in the Graham high school building between the Manilla high school team and the local high school five was cancelled today by the manager of the Manilla team on account of the sickness of two of their players. The Shelbyville high school team will be taken on by the local bunch Friday evening, February 19, on the floor in this city and the cancelled Manilla game will be played at a later date.

AMUSEMENTS

The two subjects to be shown at the Vaudeville tonight are "The Queen of the Arena" and "The World's Greatest Epesque". Both are pictures of the highest class and are interesting throughout. The first subject is taken from a performance of a great circus rider. Miss Clara Gregg will sing "I Lost My Heart When I Saw Your Eyes."

The shows at the Grand last night pleased large and appreciative audiences. The true tale of life-long feud between two old Kentucky families was pictured on the film "The Feud and the Turkey." The same subject will be shown tonight. Miss Brown will sing "When You Were a Pinetop."

The "Salisbury Family Entertainers" is a company that from every point of view is most admirable—absolutely unique. There are ten people in the aggregation and they have played before thousands of appreciative patrons in all parts of the country within the last seven years. We feel that our local Epworth League is quite fortunate in obtaining this open date, and every citizen in Rushville should encourage the organization by securing tickets early. They will appear here in St. Paul's M. E. church on Saturday evening, February 13, at 7 o'clock.

The Kramer rink will be open for skating tonight (Thursday), Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday afternoon.

"The Man From Home," Booth Tarkington's great play with a New York City and Chicago long run record, will be seen at the Auditorium in Connersville next Wednesday night.

COUNTY NEWS

Blue River.

Mrs. Zella Macy is visiting her sister, Mrs. Sam. Macy, of near Broad Ripple, this week.

The following were present at D. A. Macy's for dinner Monday, it being Mr. Macy's birthday anniversary, W. H. Hutchens and family, J. E. Davis and family, Austin and Florence Davis, Chas. Macy and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Macy, Frank Casterline and family and J. M. Binford and family.

The sad news of the death of Mrs. Clint Macy of Windsor, California, reached here Monday. For the benefit of the many friends and old acquaintances of Mr. Macy we will give a clipping from a California paper giving the account of her death:

Mrs. Ella Macy, wife of W. C. Macy of Windsor, Cal., died at her home there last Tuesday afternoon, January 26, 1909, at about four o'clock. Deceased was born in New York and was thirty-three years and five months of age. Surviving her are a husband, five-year-old daughter, Lois, and a brother, George B. Lobdell of Fresno.

The funeral took place Thursday, with interment at Shiloh cemetery, a part of the ceremony being performed by the members of Valley Home Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, of which she was a member.

The death was a particularly sad one. Mrs. Macy was a most desirable friend and a kind wife and mother, an optimist, gentle-natured, refined and intellectual woman. Three children, a former husband and a sister occupy the little plot of earth beside her in Shiloh cemetery. "Friend of friends departs. A life has ended. A presence has gone from among us, leaving a desolate home, a grief-stricken husband, a motherless child, too young to realize her loss, sorrowing friends and neighbors. Mrs. Ella Macy has laid all life's burdens down beside the still waters and quiet fields of death. All the cares and vexations of life have slipped by. All the longings of life are put aside. All the anguish of earth left behind, leaving the pale face exquisitely calm and fair, the ever sad eyes asleep in eternal peace, the exceedingly quiet and peace of death. Long will she be remembered and mourned by those who knew her kind and affectionate disposition.

We speak of a mysterious Providence in calling hence a wife and mother before the sun had reached its meridian but now we "see through a glass darkly," always darkly. Let us thank God that there is one country upon whose shores the merciless waves of time never beat; that there is one family whose love never kisses the unresponsive lips in death; that there is one home where they never say "farewell," but always, "we come home." Farewell, dear friend, farewell. The portals of another life have closed around thee, but we shall see thy face again.

Lincoln Stories

How Was the Milk Upset

William G. Greene, an old-time friend of Lincoln, was a student at Illinois College, and one summer brought home with him, on a vacation, Richard Yates (afterwards Governor of Illinois) and some other boys, and, in order to entertain them, took them up to see Lincoln.

He found him in his usual position and at his usual occupation—flat on of the college boys, and, in return, newspaper. This was the manner in which a President of the United State and a Governor of Illinois became acquainted with each other.

Greene says Lincoln repeated the whole of Burns, and a large quantity of Shakespeare for the entertainment of his college boys, and, in return, was invited to dine with them on bread and milk. How he managed to upset his bowl of milk is not a matter of history, but the fact is that he did so, as is the further fact that Greene's mother, who loved Lincoln, tried to smooth over the accident and relieve the young man's embarrassment.

"Abe" a Superb Mimic

Lincoln's reading in his early days embraced a wide range. He was particularly fond of all stories containing fun, wit and humor, and every one of these he came across he learned by heart, thus adding to his personal store. He improved as a reciter and retailer of the stories he had read and heard, and as the reciter of tales of his own invention, and he had ready and eager auditors.

Judge Herndon, in his "Abraham Lincoln," relates that as a mimic Lincoln was unequalled. An old neighbor said: "His laugh was striking. Such awkward gestures belonged to no other man. They attracted universal attention, from the old and sedate down to the schoolboy. Then in a few moments he was as calm and thoughtful as a judge on the bench, and as ready to give advice on the most important matters; fun and gravity grew on him alike."

Turned Tears to Smiles

One night Schuyler Colfax left all other business to go the White House to ask the President to respite the son of a constituent, who was sentenced to be shot, at Davenport, for desertion. Mr. Lincoln heard the story with his usual patience, though he was wearied out with incessant calls, and anxious for rest, and then replied:

"Some of our generals complain that I impair discipline and subordination in the army by my pardons and respites but it makes me rested after a hard day's work, if I can find some good excuse for saving a man's life, and I go to bed happy as I think how joyous the singing of my name will make him and his family and his friends."

And with a happy smile beaming over that care-furrowed face, he sighed that name that saved that life.

Bashful With Ladies

Judge David Davis, Justice of the United States Supreme Court, and United States Senator from Illinois, was one of Lincoln's most intimate friends. He told this story on "Abe."

"Lincoln was very bashful when in the presence of ladies. I remember once we were invited to take tea at a friend's house, and while in the parlor I was called to the front gate to see someone.

"When I returned, Lincoln, who had undertaken to entertain the ladies, was twisting and squirming in his chair, and as bashful as a school-boy."

He "Broke" to Win

A lawyer who was a stranger to Mr. Lincoln, once expressed to General Linder the opinion that Mr. Lincoln's practice of telling stories to the jury was a waste of time.

"Don't lay that flattering unction to your soul," Linder answered; "Lincoln is like Tansey's horse, he 'brakes to win.'"

Abe Martin Says--

Abe Martin, in the Indianapolis News last night said: "Nearly every- one feller you meet these days imagines he heard Lincoln at Hamilton, Ohio, in the fall o' '59."

Pulled Fodder for a Book

Once "Abe" borrowed Weems' "Life of Washington" from Joseph Crawford, a neighbor. "Abe" devoured it; read it and re-read it, and when asleep put it by him between the logs of the wall. One night a rain storm wet it through and ruined it.

"I've no money," said "Abe," when reporting the disaster to Crawford, "but I'll work it out."

"All right," was Crawford's response; "you pull fodder for three days, an' the book is your'n."

"Abe" pulled the fodder, but he never forgave Crawford for putting so much work on him. He never lost an opportunity to crack a joke at his expense, and the name "Blue-nose Crawford" "Abe" applied to him stuck to him throughout his life.

Not Much at Rail Splitting

One who afterwards became one of Lincoln's most devoted friends and adherents tells this story regarding the manner in which Lincoln received him when they met for the first time:

"After a comical survey of my fashionable toggery,—my swallow-tail coat, white neck-cloth shirt (an astonishing outfit for a young limb of the law in that settlement,) Lincoln said:

"Going to try your hand at law, are you? I should know at a glance that you were a Virginian; but I don't think you would succeed at splitting rails. That was my occupation at your age, and I don't think I have taken as much pleasure in anything else from that day to this."

Why She Married Him

There was a "social" at Lincoln's house in Springfield, and "Abe" introduced his wife to Ward Lamon, his law partner. Lamon tells the story in these words:

"After introducing me to Mrs. Lincoln, he left us in conversation. I remarked to her that her husband was a great favorite in the eastern part of the State, where I had been stopping.

"Yes," she replied, 'he is a great favorite everywhere. He is to be President of the United States some day; if I had not thought so I never would have married him, for you can see he is not pretty.

"But look at him, doesn't he look as if he would make a magnificent President?"

Six Feet Four at Seventeen

"Abe's" school teacher, Crawford, endeavored to teach his pupils some of the manners of "polite society" of Indiana—1823 or so. This was part of his system:

One of the pupils would retire, and then come in as a stranger, and another pupil would have to introduce him to all the members of the school in what was considered "good manners."

As "Abe" wore a linsey-woolsey shirt, buckskin breeches which were too short and very tight, and low shoes, and was tall and awkward, he no doubt created considerable merriment when his turn came. He was growing at a fearful rate; he was fifteen years of age, and two years later attained his full height of six feet four inches.

Lincoln Stories

Had Respects for the Eggs

Early in 1831, "Abe" was one of the guests of honor at a boat-launching, he and two others having built the craft. The affair was a notable one, people being present from the territory surrounding. A large party came from Springfield with an ample supply of whisky, to give the boat and its builders a send off. It was a sort of a bipartisan mass-meeting, but there was one prevailing spirit, that born of rye and corn. Speeches were made in the best of feeling, some in favor of Andrew Jackson and some in favor of Henry Clay. Abraham Lincoln, the cook, told a number of funny stories, and it is recorded that they were not of too refined a character to suit the taste of his audience. A sleight-of-hand performer was present, and among other tricks performed, he fried some eggs in Lincoln's hat. Judge Herndon says, as explanatory to the delay in passing up the hat for experiment, Lincoln drolly observed: "It was out of respect for the eggs, not care for my hat."

His Poor Relations

One of the most beautiful traits of Mr. Lincoln's character was his considerate regard for the poor and obscure relatives he had left, plodding along in their humble ways of life. Wherever upon his circuit he found them, he always went to their dwellings, ate with them, and, when convenient, made their houses his home. He never assumed in their presence the slightest superiority to them. He gave them money when they needed it and he had it. Countless times he was known to leave his companions at the village hotel, after a hard day's work in the court room, and spent the evening with these old friends and companions of his humbler days. On one occasion, when urged not to go, he replied, "Why aunt's heart would be broken if I should leave town without calling upon her;" yet he was obliged to walk several miles to make the call.

Saw Humor in Everything

There was much that was irritating and uncomfortable in the circuit-riding of the Illinois court, but there was more which was amusing to a temperament like Lincoln's. The freedom, the long days in the open air, the unexpected if trivial adventures, the meeting with wayfarers and settlers—all was an entertainment to him. He found humor and human interest on the route where his companions saw nothing but commonplace.

"He saw the ludicrous in an assemblage of fowls," says H. C. Whitney, one of his fellow-itinerants, "in a man spading his garden, in a close-line full of clothes, in a group of boys, in a lot of pigs rooting at a mill door, in a mother duck teaching her brood to swim—in everything and any thing."

With the Help of God

Mr. Lincoln once remarked to Mr. Noah Brooks, one of his most intimate personal friends: "I should be the most presumptuous blockhead upon this footstool if I for one day thought that I could discharge the duties which have come upon me, since I came to this place, without the aid and enlightenment of One who is stronger and wiser than all others."

He said on one occasion: "I am very sure that if I do not go away from here a wiser man, I shall go away a better man, from having learned here what a very poor sort of a man I am."

A Teetotaler

When Lincoln was in the Black Hawk War as captain, the volunteer soldiers drank in with delight the jests and stories of the tall captain. Aesop's Fables were given a new dress, and the tales of the wild adventures that he had brought from Kentucky and Indiana were many, but his inspiration was never stimulated by recourse to the whisky jug.

When his grateful and delighted auditors pressed this on him he had one reply: "Thank you, I never drink it."

The high school will have Lincoln exercises tomorrow afternoon.

The Assassination of President Abraham Lincoln

We still stone our prophets. We do not literally shy rocks at them in these days, but we pelt them with bullets or with adjectives quite as hard. Woe to the man who tries to help us onward, for we repay his love and service with hatred and reviling and usually win up by murdering him in cold blood. Then we try to make up for our base ingratitude by praising him after he is dead and writing his name in stone, ready to repeat our outrageous treatment of him on the next great soul that comes to help us up the path through the ages.

front during a battle he needlessly exposed himself. He resented having a guard placed about him and never rested until it was removed. He went about Washington unattended at all hours of the day and night, and while his own utterances showed that he was fully alive to the dangers he never made any provision against them.

"If they kill me," he said philosophically, "the next man will be just as bad for them, and in a country like this, where our habits are simple and must be, assassination is always on her mentioning this fact he remarked, "And well I may feel so, Mary, for I consider this day that the war has come to a close."

It was not quite at a close. His own death was to be the last act of the gigantic drama. That would end slavery and disunion forever, past the power of any man to revive. The book would be shut and sealed with his own blood. No man could ever reopen it and turn back the pages again.

Perhaps never in the world's history has grief been more universal

Union was saved and slavery was ended. The Government "of the people, for the people and by the people" had been vindicated and perpetuated. One more stone had been lifted into place in the temple of democracy.

As to the fate of the assassin and of the other conspirators, why speak at all? Nothing can be gained by reviving that painful episode now. That there was a conspiracy there can be no doubt, and that substantial justice was done seems to be the consensus of the world's opinion. The only regret in connection with it all is that Reproduction of an old picture of the Lincoln family published in Harper's Weekly in 1868.

Lincoln's assassination had been threatened from the moment of his nomination for the presidency. The only wonder is that it was averted until the close of the war. While he paid little or no attention to the menacing hints that came in every mail, his many private and public references to the subject show that he expected a tragic death.

He often jokingly said that he was a physical coward, yet no man ever showed higher bravery or greater unconscionableness of danger. When at the possible and will come if they are determined upon it."

The hour the blow was struck could not have been more exactly timed if it had been arranged from eternity. The war was ending. At the last cabinet meeting, held on the very day of the assassination, General Grant was present, expecting news of Johnston's surrender, the last great act of the conflict. On the same afternoon the president went driving with Mrs. Lincoln, who said she had never seen him so happy. Up-and profound than President Lincoln's death. This man had the heart of the common people. To the private soldier he was a father, to the negro a liberator, to the union a savior, to the lowly man of every clime a brother. His death revealed his supreme greatness. The cowardly assassin that sneaked into his box and shot him from behind in reality shot rebellion and calumny to death, but never harmed Abraham Lincoln. He was secure in the world's heart forever. His work was done. The a woman should have been executed. Lincoln's life was so merciful and charitable, he so frequently protected the weak, he hearkened so often to the cries of the mother heart, that the fate of Mrs. Surratt seems an unfitting accompaniment in the setting of his own tragic death. Nothing of vengeance or harshness has any place even in the shadows at the end of Lincoln's pathway.

It would have been ordered otherwise had he been spared and another fallen from the assassin's bullet.

Abe's" Log

It was the custom in Sangamon for the "menfolks" to gather at noon and in the evening, when resting, in a convenient lane near the mill. They had rolled out a long peeled log, on which they lounged while they whittled and talked.

Lincoln had not long been in Sangamon before he joined the circle. At once he became a favorite by his jokes and good humor. As soon as he appeared at the assembly ground, the men would start him to story-telling. So irresistibly droll were his "yarns" that whenever he'd end up in his unexpected way, the boys on the log would whoop and roll off. The result of the rolling off was to polish the log like a mirror. The men recognizing Lincoln's part in this polishing, christened their seat "Abe's log."

Long after Lincoln had disappeared from Sangamon, "Abe's log" remained, and until it had rotted away people pointed it out, and repeated the droll stories of the stranger.

Bought Wedding Outfit

they passed the doors to the dining room, an effort was made to close the doors, but the mad rush of the people burst them mid open and in rushed such a crowd that they were more like stampeded cattle than human beings.

A cordon of police clasped hands and formed a circle and made an open passage way along which the people passed single file and shook the hands of the president.

After a long time I succeeded in gaining an entrance to the pass and for the second time that evening I grasped that honest hand. Then I got up in one of the large windows and watched the crowd for quite a while, but finally someone in management stepped upon the platform and announced, "Mr. Lincoln would be glad to take you all by the hand, but he is now tired, and as he has this to go through with several days and nights yet before he reaches Washington, you must excuse him for remaining longer before you, and bids you good night." Then the police escorted him upstairs.

A peculiar incident in this experience was that it all occurred on Mr. Lincoln's fifty-second birthday.

Speaking of Capt. Elmer Ellsworth, he was of fine commanding appearance and military bearing. He and his company, dressed in their zouave uniforms, attracted much attention. I believe history records him as the first Union man to give up his life in the War of the Rebellion. It occurred soon after hostilities began, and occurred in a hotel in Alexandria, Va., in connection with the hauling down of a rebel flag that was flying over the hotel.

Col. Sol. Meredith, of Cambridge City, Ind., was also a conspicuous figure in the crowd that evening. Head and shoulders above most people, there were many inquiries, "Who is he?" He at that time was quite a noted man.

Few Fence Rails Left

"There won't be a tar barrel left in Illinois to-night," said Senator Stephen A. Douglas, in Washington, to his Senatorial friends, who asked him, when the news of the nomination of Lincoln reached them. "Who is this man Lincoln anyhow?"

Douglas was right. Not only the tar barrels, but half the fences of the State of Illinois went up in the fire of rejoicing.

Sins Washed Out in Blood

This was a reply made by Lincoln to an application for the pardon of a soldier who had shown himself brave in war, had been severely wounded, but afterwards deserted:

"Did you say he was once badly wounded?"

"Then as the scriptures say that in the shedding of blood is the remission of sins, I guess we'll have to let him off this time."
